This is UNEVALUATED Information

1. Between 15 and 21 February 1955, [redacted] vehicles were observed at the Commissaries:

Commissary (1) Voichenkov

trucks

Commissary (2) Volevach

25X1

Commissary (5) Bilyatski

Commissary (8) Toporkov

Commissary (9) Mashkin

25X1

Commissary (11) Dobritski

(formerly Eromenko)

Commissary (12) Tupitsin

Commissary (14) Komar

Commissary (17) Zenozatski

Commissary (19) Krushilnitski

Storeroom 2 (6a) airfield Werder

Storeroom 3 (6b) airfield Werder

Glindo

Storeroom 6 (7a) Bad Saarow

Storeroom 8 (7c) Buckow

On 10 February 1955, Commissary [redacted] was taken over by Dobritski (fnu) whose rank was unknown. The present assignment of [redacted] officer Captain Eromenko (fnu) is unknown.

Storeroom 1 no longer existed since it had been combined with storeroom 2 at Werder airfield.

2. Justerboog military post was supplied by Commissary (2) Volevach. It was unknown as to which commissary, Brandis airfield was assigned but it appeared possible that purchases for Brandis were made directly in Leipzig. The accounts for all purchases in Leipzig or Dresden were settled by the central commissary (Base) in Werder.

3. Between 9 and 11 February, there was a conference of all supply officers of the Soviet Air Force Headquarters and Army units held in Wuensdorf

4. The following shipping clerks were employed:

Commissary 2 in Zerbst	Rotermund (fnu), a German
Commissary 9 in Stendal	Lavrinovich (fnu), a Soviet
Commissary 9 in Brandenburg- Industrieafen	Huhn (fnu), a German
Commissary 11 in Brandenburg- Briest	Dugrim (fnu), a Soviet woman
Commissary 14 in Wittenberg (?)	Kanikhin (fnu), a Soviet. ³

5. On 1 March, Major Spiliotin (fnu), chief of the Basa in Werder, was to become the deputy of Major Zavada (fnu) who was the chief of the Main Bureau. Major Volevach (fnu) who allegedly was to replace Spiliotin had refused to take over the post of chief of the Basa twice during the last year and, according to his own statement on 15 February, was finally ordered by the air force headquarters to accept the post. This statement indicates that personnel changes are effected by the air force headquarters in Werder. This headquarters also is responsible for punishment, promotions, furlough and transfer matters within all air force commissaries. The superior headquarters of the Main Bureau of the Basa, presumably had a personnel strength of 20 to 25 men.
